

Canine Myfunctional Therapy Equine Myfunctional Therapy

Canine & Equine Myofunctional Therapy (massage) course is ideal as a “value adding” service extension to a Boarding, Retail, Pet Sitting, Dog Walking or Grooming business, or as a business in its own right.

The National College of Traditional Medicine offers intensive and comprehensive courses in Myofunctional Therapy for Dogs and Horses in Victoria, NSW and Queensland.

This course has been designed for all those with a love of dogs and an interest in improving their health and wellbeing with the gentle but powerful therapy of massage.

The dog massage training program is the highest standard delivered within Australia, and you are trained to be an effective practitioner, not just a graduate.

NCTM offers students:

- The best student/teacher ratio in the industry
- A nurturing learning environment where you will receive individual attention and all the support you need to succeed
- Confidence learning with the college with the highest retention rate of students and 25 years in the industry
- All your texts and course notes included in your fees
- Highly qualified and experienced lecturers with innovative teaching techniques
- Guaranteed continued support after completing your course

The Recommended timeframe for the completion is approx 12 months part-time. Students have a maximum of two years to complete this course upon application (Fees apply).

Senior Lecturer Sandi Rogers is a dynamic and committed educator, with a team of experts delivering courses in three states.

The NCTM has strong links with SAENA – The Small Animal and Equine Naturopathic Association, and so courses are commercial, focused and relevant and students are supported after they graduate.
